

"Kinderspiel des Jahres 2012"

Schoolchildren from Hamburg were chosen to reveal the "Kinderspiel des Jahres 2012". The press showed considerable interest as the veil was raised and the winner was SCHNAPPT HUBI by Steffen Bogen that prevailed over the other nominees as well as more than 150 other children's games that the jury had scrutinized.

"That it comes with electricity", one of the children answered, regarding the question of what he liked best about the game. He meant the electronics contained in the game. This was the second time – after WER WAR'S in 2008 – that a Ravensburger game from the series "Brettspiel + Elektronik" (board game + electronics) was awarded the title. The company has systematically advanced the technology over the last few years.

KMW/sbw

